Craig Gallanis

1963-1988

Craig Gallanis was one of the genuine bright spots in our class who touched us all in a special way. He exemplified the kind of person we all envied. He was a diligent student but he was not consumed by medical school. Craig was always up, always positive, he was someone you were glad to run into during the day. The "Gallanis" hand shake, the hug, the touch on the shoulder . . .

School has brought us all together for a moment in our lives. Craig was a bright spot in that moment. He epitomized the idea of living life for the moment, full and freely. Craig didn't postpone living until later, until things were settled. He grabbed every moment and made the most of life. We lived with him, played with him, worked with him and loved him. We will miss him.

H. Frank Forsyth,
M.D.

Professor H. Frank Forsyth, Chairman of the Division of Orthopedic Surgery for several years, died in March 1988. He was born September 27, 1914, and was a graduate of the University of Michigan. He received his orthopedic training at the University of Michigan before coming to the Bowman Gray School of Medicine Department of Orthopedics. He succeeded Dr. R.A. Moore, who was the first chairman of that division.

Frank Forsyth was a skilled and knowledgeable surgeon with deep concern for the problems of his fellow man, particularly children. He gave time to listen to people before he sought to solve the many problems presented to him.

He was a skilled, persistent, and determined surgeon who had the proper balance of confidence and humility. He was an author, a teacher and a trainer of many young doctors.

His children, Mary Land and David Forsyth, have established a trust fund to honor his memory, to be used by the Division of Orthopedic Surgery for the benefit of disabled and handicapped children.

Alan Klein, M.B., B.Ch., Associate Professor of Radiology, died suddenly of a heart attack in Cairns, Australia on September 8th, 1988 while on a lecture tour. He was 56 years old and had been on the Bowman Gray faculty for 12 years.

Born in Springs, South Africa, Dr. Klein received both undergraduate and medical degrees from the University of the Witwatersrand, Johannesburg. He received residency training in radiology at the Hammersmith and Guys Hospitals in London, and his special interests were emergency and orthopedic radiology.

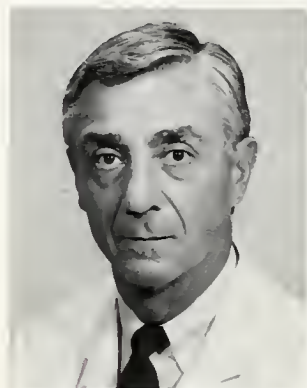

Between 1979 and 1988 he won the Bowman Gray Award for Teaching Excellence five times from the Physician's Assistant Program and four times from the Emergency Medicine Residents Program.

Alan Klein's cheerfulness and sense of humor endeared him to all who knew him. At Bowman Gray he was a favorite among faculty, residents, students, and staff.

It is difficult to comprehend or accept the death of one whose personality was so synonymous with life. Alan Klein was such a man, and he is greatly missed.

Alan Klein, M.B., B.Ch.

George D. Rovere,
M.D.

Dr. George D. Rovere, professor and head of Orthopedic Surgery and team physician for Wake Forest University died November 24, 1988 after suffering from cancer for nearly two years. He was 55.

Dr. Rovere received his bachelor's degree from Syracuse University and his medical degree from the State University of New York, College of Medicine at Syracuse. He was a resident at the University of Virginia Hospital and the Hospital for Special Surgery at Cornell University.

Dr. Rovere joined the Bowman Gray faculty in 1972 and became a professor in 1983. He was named head of Orthopedic Surgery in early 1988. He was active in the teaching, patient care and research programs at Bowman Gray and Wake Forest. In addition he was nationally acclaimed for his work in sports medicine. The George D. Rovere Scholarship, established in 1987, is awarded each year to a deserving student athletic trainer at Bowman Gray.

Dr. Rovere was a valued and respected member of the faculty, and his strong presence will be fondly remembered and sorely missed.

Special Recognition

Nat E. Smith, M.D.

Dr. Nat Smith joined the faculty of Bowman Gray as Professor of Medicine and Associate Dean in 1976.

He received his B.A. from Erskine College in 1943 and his M.D. from Medical College of Georgia in 1949. He served as a captain in the U.S. Army Medical Corps in Panama and Korea before completing his residency in Washington D.C. After residency, he worked briefly at the Veteran's Administration Hospital in Columbia, South Carolina. He then joined the Department of Medicine at the University of Illinois in 1957. In 1962 he was promoted to Assistant Dean of the College of Medicine and from 1968-1973 served as Associate Dean and Professor of Medicine. He moved South in 1973 to serve as Dean of Medicine at Mercer University in Macon, Ga., until coming to Bowman Gray.

At BGSM, Dr. Smith's principal responsibility has been the development and implementation of the medical school curriculum. He has been the chairman of the Committee on Medical Education since 1977. While serving the medical school primarily as an administrator, Dr. Smith has continued to be involved with students as a physical diagnosis tutor and as director of the Medical Student Scholar's Program.

Dr. Smith, along with Dr. Fairfield Goodale, was instrumental in the initiation of the Parallel Curriculum, of which he has continued to be an enthusiastic supporter.

This summer Dr. Smith will step down from his position as Associate Dean. He will retain some of his favorite responsibilities which allow him to work with students. He also plans to take advantage of his lighter schedule to devote time to developing new projects. We, the editors of Gray Matter 1989, would like to show Dr. Nat E. Smith our appreciation with this special recognition.

June G. May, Ph.D.

Dr. June May has been Registrar and Administrative Assistant to the Associate Dean for Student Affairs since 1983.

Dr. May received her Bachelor of Science degree in Elementary Education from Frostburg State College in Maryland. She worked as an elementary school teacher and in research development until completing her graduate work. She earned her doctorate in education from the University of Houston in 1962.

She then served in various capacities at Winston-Salem State University, including professor, director of the Teacher Corps, curriculum planner and grant writer, editor and long-range planner. She has held offices in professional societies at the state and national levels.

Her jobs at Bowman Gray have been many and diverse. She is responsible for scheduling third and fourth year rotations, supervising the school's and students' involvement in the National Residency Matching Program, coordinating student activities and planning the large-scale school programs and ceremonies.

In addition to these administrative duties, Dr. May has accepted and indeed embraced a whole set of personal responsibilities. She serves as counselor, advisor, and friend to many students throughout their medical school careers, and, most fortunately, during times of special need.

In a world of convoluted regulations and multiple frustrations, Dr. May's graciousness, directness and organizational skills are exemplary. We the editors offer her this recognition for those qualities and for her friendship.

"Ground-breaking ceremonies were held in April, 1940, and construction was begun the following July. The cornerstone was laid on April 16, 1941, and the medical school was moved from Wake Forest in June of that year . . . Instruction began in September for 42 freshmen and 30 sophomores . . . At the first medical school commencement in 1943, Dr. Frederick M. Hanes stated, "In 1941, I knew damned well that it couldn't be done . . . Now it has been done, I don't believe it." Years later it was truly said that in developing the medical center a shoe was built around a shoestring."

Our First Year

The year of living dangerously

As the class of 1989, we entered medical school with uncertainty and a vast assortment of new colleagues, new professors and new classes. First semester featured a seemingly never-ending barrage of exams, lectures and, perhaps most memorable, Gross Anatomy labs. Practice practicals replaced dinners, odiferous lab partners replaced college friends and Biochemistry tests replaced Trivial Pursuit. Dr. McCreight's party brought a celebratory end to the first leg of our journey, and we returned home tired but justifiably proud of our accomplishments. Second semester introduced us to "Exam Weeks," our first blood-draws from terrified victims (the first of many) and, for the most part, a more relaxed atmosphere as we enjoyed the sun-drenched Spring of '86.

Happy
Holidays

Class of 89

Our Second Year

The year of living studiously

After a short summer of reading upside down, second year commenced with Pathology, more Path, some hourly Path quizzes and, for variety, a Parh shelf exam to graphically display how little Pathology we actually knew. Soon thereafter, we were introduced to the novelty of three-week courses running simultaneously, and an avalanche of information from which we only occasionally dug ourselves out. Physical Diagnosis began and multitudes of Second Years, dressed for success in clean white coats and ophthalmoscopes, ascended to the hospiral wards in search of patients willing to spend 10 hours discussing their medical history. A mid-winter snowstorm wreaked havoc, but Spring soon arrived and our thoughts and note services turned to the ominous meaning behind the omnipresent words, "This will be on the boards."

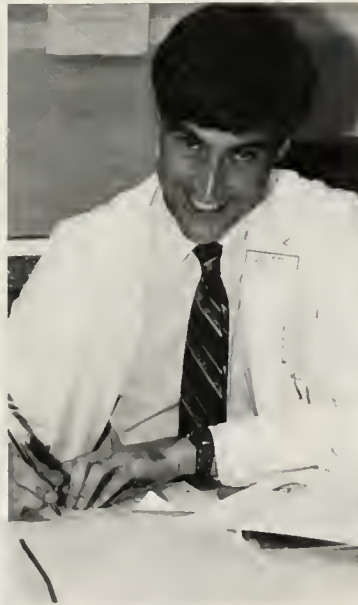

Our Third Year

The year of living clinically

Third year began at different times and in different ways for each of us. Some spent their days and nights in operating rooms, others on rounds and work-ups, a few delivered babies, others tentatively patrolled the Psychiatry wards, and a lucky few were initiated to the perils and pleasures of Pediatrics. Slowly but surely, we became more comfortable with patients of all shapes and sizes, blood cultures and lumbar punctures, waking up before the sun, retracting for hours, presenting to demanding attendings and seriously asking questions like "Who chews the baby's food?" Life and death became real and personal as we watched both unfold on the floors, and as we grieved together for our classmate Craig.

Our Fourth Year

The year of living separately

The culmination of our medical school careers finally brought us face to face with the often vexing decision of a residency choice. We tortured ourselves over Personal Statements and the volume of paperwork needed to successfully apply for post-graduate positions. Rotations became increasingly pleasant while many of us traveled the globe in quest of enjoyment and a broadened education. As Match Day grew closer, tension levels rose to a fever pitch, and the realization hit us that soon, very soon, we would no longer answer to the label "medical student".

Before we undertook the task of creating the Gray Matter 1989, we had little realization of what it would eventually entail. Without the help of the following special people, we would never have managed to produce the foregoing one hundred and seventy pages.

First and foremost, we owe many thanks to Joann Thomas of Hunter Publishing for saving our necks, for sage advice and for dinner.

Another major lifesaver was Mr. Jack Dent of AV Services who rescued us with his talent and photographed at least a thousand smiling faces throughout this yearbook.

Sarah-Patsy Knight, though we failed to take full advantage of her talents, deserves thanks for her help as well.

We are indebted to Dr. Eben Alexander, David Forsyth and Geri Peavy for their expedient production of biographies of those close to their hearts.

Thanks also to the faculty members who updated their photos in order to cut down on the leisure suits, polyester, and three-inch-wide ties.

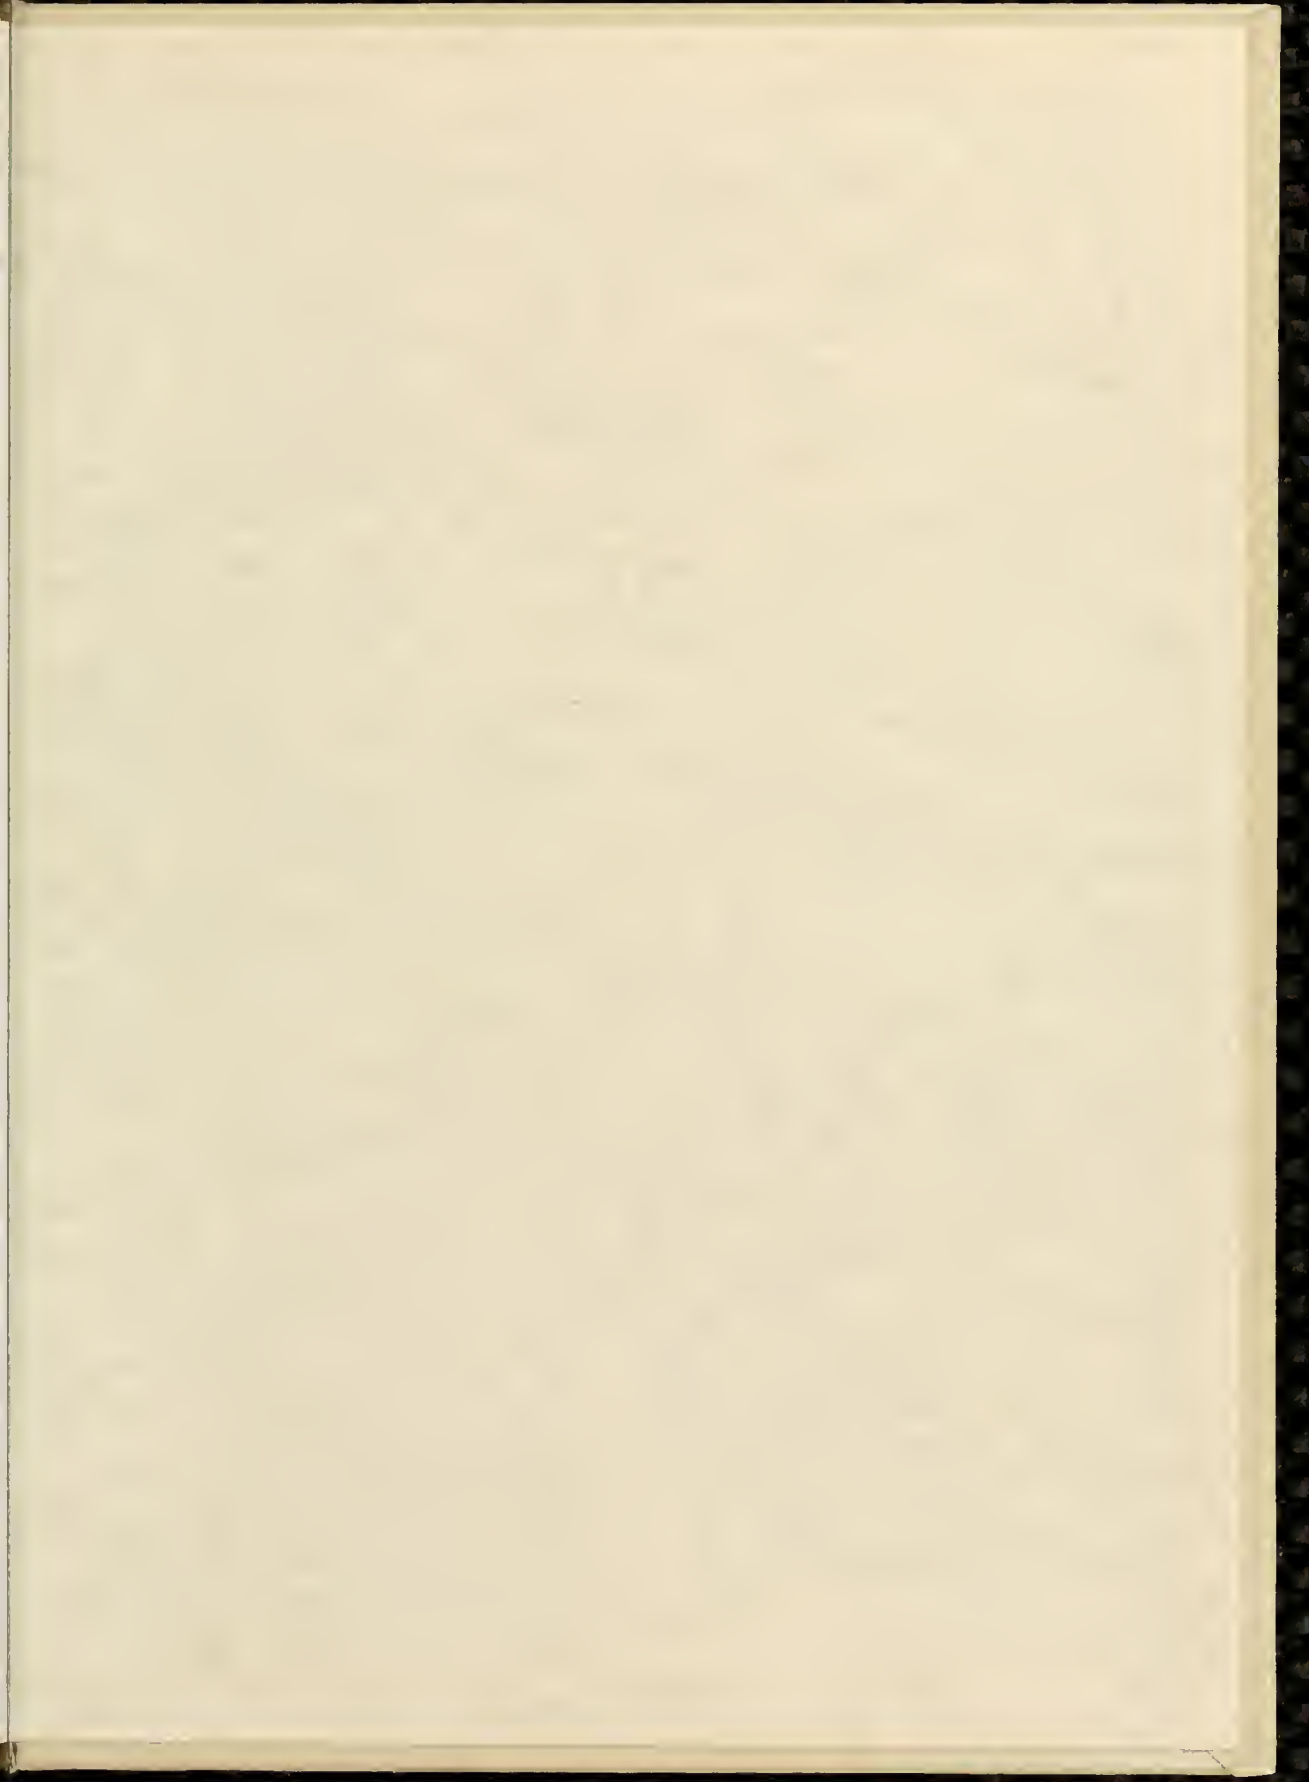

Thanks to our parents for buying us great cameras.

Also a special round of applause to Evan "Elvis" Karp, the caption machine, who came up with the humorous lines throughout this book — not to mention the ones that were never destined to be printed.

Last but not least, thanks to the hard-working staff whose efforts are surely appreciated by every one at Bowman Gray.

Fond memories to all.
